Reflection

911 Reflection

20 years ago, the United States of America experienced the horror of what redefined the lives of countless families, our society and the world. The terrorist attack of 9/11 left a big scar on our minds, memories and nation. The nation collectively shared the losses. There were many questions: why such evil on our land? Why would God allow those thousands of innocent souls to perish in such manner? Together, there were hopes for a miracle for survivors. Everyone paused to cry and mourn.

In the midst of the confusion, God made his presence in the thousands of people who gathered to pray. God made his presence in the bond of togetherness as people came together as a family. God made his presence in the courageous women and men who raced to the scene working to help.

Surely, we will never forget. And we also will never forget that God has not abandoned us even in the midst of evil. We pray for all the souls that were lost in the 9/11 attack. We pray for all the families who lost loved ones on that day. We pray for the courageous people who helped. We pray for an end to evil and terrorism in our world. Even when the forces of darkness appear to prevail, we who believe in God know that evil and death do not have the final say. We remember that no spiral of hatred and fear and violence will ever prevail on our lands or in our lives. Let us beg the Lord to calm every fear in our hearts. With faith, we trust like the Psalmist (Ps. 46:7) and say "The God of host is with us; the God of Jacob is our stronghold."
